Successfully meeting all T-Mobile network requirements, this certification marks a significant milestone for Digi, enabling the provision of reliable and enhanced remote monitoring solutions to T-Mobile customers. The recently launched Digi

Connect Sensor XRT-M is tailored for businesses operating in precision agriculture, municipal water utilities, mining, and industrial gas and chemical verticals. It offers cloud-based control, ensuring optimal performance and seamless connectivity for remote monitoring applications. Additionally, Digi Connect Sensor XRT-M is enhanced by seamless integration with the Digi Axess management platform, which features an intuitive interface and streamlines data management — enhancing operational efficiency.

"T-Mobile's certification of Digi Connect Sensor XRT-M highlights the unparalleled reliability and excellence of our technology," said Brian Kirkendall, General Manager and Vice President of Infrastructure Management at Digi. "We're excited to empower and provide T-Mobile customers with a cutting-edge remote monitoring solution that combines Digi's innovative technology with T-Mobile's expansive network reach."

With this new certification, Digi now offers a comprehensive solution that combines Digi's advanced sensor technology with T-Mobile's robust cellular service, resulting in a synergy that ensures customers receive a powerful and reliable remote monitoring experience.
